

Contents

1	Meaning in Mind, Language, and Culture	3
	The General Goal of the Book	3
	The Kinds of Issues in a Theory of Mind	4
	The Objectivist View	8
	The Experientialist View	10
	Universality versus the Relativity of Human Knowledge	12
	Conclusions	15
2	Categorizing the World	17
	Prototypes, Theories, and Linguistic Relativity
	How Do We Acquire Our Categories?	18
	Theories of Categorization	19
	Color and Linguistic Relativity	31
	The Sapir-Whorf Hypothesis	34
	Conclusions	35
	Exercises	37
3	Levels of Interacting with the World	39
	Cognitive and Cultural Considerations
	Theories of Taxonomic Hierarchies	39
	Basic-Level Categories and Their Properties	42
	The Role of Culture in the Creation of Basic-Level Categories	46
	Conclusions	48
	Exercises	48
4	Contesting Categories in Culture	51
	Debates about Art
	Classical and Basic-Level Definitions of Art	52
	The Traditional View of Art as a Prototype-Based Category	53
	What Are the Emerging Features of the Traditional View of Art?	56

xii CONTENTS

Is Art an "Essentially Contested Concept"?	58
Conclusions	60
Exercises	61
5 Organizing Knowledge about the World	63
Frames in the Mind
What Is a Frame?	64
Frames as Cultural Constructs and Cultures as Frames	69
What Are Frames Good For?	72
Conclusions	78
Exercises	78
6 The Frame Analysis of Culture	81
Classification Systems and Culture	81
Two Cultural Issues	85
Literature and Frames	88
Politics and Framing	91
Conclusions	93
Exercises	95
7 Mappings within Frames	97
Metonymy as a Cognitive and Cultural Process
What Is Metonymy?	98
Frames and Their Parts	100
Culture, Cognition, and Metonymy	106
Cultural Factors in Prototype Effects	107
Conclusions	111
Exercises	112
8 Mappings across Frames	115
Metaphor
What Is a Conceptual Metaphor?	115
Components of Conceptual Metaphors	116
Kinds of Metaphor	127
Conclusions	130
Exercises	131
9 Metaphoric Frames	135
Some Cultural and Social Applications
Cultural Symbols	136
Interpreting History and the Creation of Metaphors	137
Metaphoric Framing	139
Metaphors Made Real	142
Narrative Structure and Metaphor	148
Linguistic Relativity and Metaphor	150
Conclusions	151
Exercises	153

10	Metaphor Variation across and within Cultures	155
	Universal Conceptual Metaphors	156
	Dimensions of Metaphor Variation	157
	Aspects of Metaphor Involved in Variation	164
	Causes of Metaphor Variation	167
	Love Is a Journey: A Case Study in Cultural Differences in Metaphorical Expression	172
	Conclusions	177
	Exercises	178
11	Meaning and Thought	181
	Literal or Figurative?
	Traditional Assumption (1): Literal Meaning Can Constitute Abstract Meanings	183
	Traditional Assumption (2): Certain Figurative and Abstract Meanings Are Understood in a Literal Way under Certain Circumstances	184
	Traditional Assumption (3): Figurative Abstract Meaning in One Language Can Be Expressed by Means of Literal Meaning in Another Language	187
	Can Cultural Models for Abstract Concepts Be Literal?	194
	Conclusions	203
	Exercises	204
12	The Embodied Mind	207
	The Role of Image-Schemas
	Some Perceptual Image-Schemas	208
	The Structure of Mind	211
	Forces in the Mind	213
	Understanding Stories	222
	Conclusions	224
	Exercises	225
13	Alternative Construals of the World	227
	Attention	228
	Judgment and Comparison	232
	Perspective	236
	Overall Structure	239
	Grammatical Conceptualization and Linguistic Relativity	244
	Construal Operations and Culture	245
	Conclusions	246
	Exercises	246
14	Constructing Meaning in Discourse	249
	Mental Spaces
	Characterizing Mental Spaces	250
	How Mental Spaces Actually Work in Organizing Our Understanding of Discourse	255
	The Uses of Mental Space Theory in Solving Linguistic Issues	261

	The Global Cognitive Structure of Literary Discourse: A Further Use of Mental Space Theory	266
	Conclusions	267
	Exercises	268
15	Conceptual Blends and Material Anchors	271
	Some Examples of Conceptual Integration	272
	Types of Conceptual Integration	277
	Blends in Material Culture and Cultural Practice	287
	Conclusions	291
	Exercises	292
16	Cognition and Grammar	295
	The Cognitive Structure of Language
	Cognition and Grammar	296
	A Sketch of Cognitive Grammar	305
	Grammar and Compositionality of Meaning	318
	Linguistic Relativity and Grammar	322
	Conclusions	324
	Exercises	325
17	Summing It Up	327
	An Account of Meaningful Experience
	How Do Our Main Questions Get Answered?	328
	Universality and Relativity	332
	Language and Cognition: Linguistic Relativity Again	334
	Meaning and Culture	335
	Solutions to Exercises	339
	Glossary	365
	References	377
	Index	389