

Contents

1	The legal position of the media	6
1.1	Freedom of expression, information and the Press	6
1.2	Public authorities' duty to provide information and the right to refuse evidence	8
1.3	The limits to freedom of expression, information and the Press	11
1.4	The reply	16
1.5	Who keeps a check on the media?	17
1.5.1	The indivisibility of the freedom of the media	17
1.5.2	Self-regulation via the Press Council	18
1.5.3	The Federal Supervisory Office	21
2	The structure of the media	22
2.1	Overview	22
2.1.1	Private ownership	24
2.1.2	The Press's local links	25
2.1.3	Other local papers	34
2.1.4	Regional newspapers	36
2.1.5	Supra-regional dailies	40
2.1.6	BILD-ZEITUNG and other tabloids	42
2.1.7	Weekly newspapers and magazines	45
2.1.8	The party-political Press	50
2.1.9	Foreign-language Press	52
2.1.10	Magazines	52
2.2	Dependence	57
2.2.1	Subscriber and street sales newspapers	57
2.2.2	Advertising	58
2.3	Deficits in coverage	61
2.4	Ownership structure	64
2.4.1	Overview	64
2.4.2	Reasons for mergers	64
2.4.3	Press concentration in eastern Germany	67
2.4.4	Media groups	70
2.4.5	How much power does concentration bring?	72
2.4.6	Proposals to counter Press concentration	76
2.5	Other newspaper models	78
3	The dual system of radio and TV	82
3.1	The Federal Constitutional Court's TV rulings	82
3.2	The 1991 State Treaty on Broadcasting	83

4	Public broadcasting corporations	86
4.1	Organisation	86
4.1.1	Objectives	86
4.1.2	Broadcasting corporations	86
4.1.3	Organisation	88
4.2	The power of parties and associations	90
4.3	Information programmes	94
4.3.1	Balance	94
4.3.2	Radio news	96
4.3.3	Television news	98
4.3.4	Freedom of expression	101
4.3.5	Equal treatment of political parties?	104
4.4	Criticism of broadcasting corporations	105
5	Private radio and TV	110
5.1	Broadcasting companies and their programmes	110
5.1.1	Private TV	110
5.1.2	Private radio	113
5.2	The state media authorities	115
5.2.1	Tasks	115
5.2.2	Media interconnections	117
5.3	New forms of programme	125
5.3.1	Pay TV	125
5.3.2	The Open Channel	125
6	Information sources	130
6.1	News agencies	130
6.2	Press offices	133
7	Journalists	136
7.1	The journalist's profession	136
7.2	Journalists' credibility	144
7.3	Journalists and publishers	146
7.4	Beginnings of internal Press freedom	147
8	Media and politics	152
8.1	Dissatisfaction with media and politics	152
8.2	Interactions	155
8.3	Relationship games between journalists and politicians	156